INTRODUCTION

La Canonica is an incredible place, not only because of its beautiful location on the brow of a hill surrounded by ancient fields and woodland, but also because the property itself has been so carefully restored, revealing unique and interesting details round every corner.

The estate is first mentioned in documents dating back to 1750 and from then until the middle of the 19th century the original farmhouse and most of the surrounding land belonged to Saint Peter's Benedictine Monastery in nearby Perugia. When Italy was unified, the farmland and buildings came under the control of the Fondazione Agraria, an agricultural foundation.

The second farmhouse was added at the beginning of the 20th century and La Canonica was a working farm until the last farming family left in 1982, after which it remained empty for many years.

La Canonica was listed as an Italian historical heritage building in 2005. The current owners fell in love with the estate and have spent 15 years transforming it, restoring the properties with passion and energy, honouring the integrity of the buildings and the land using local materials and techniques, and renovating in as sustainable a way as possible through reusing and repurposing. The result is a harmonious blending of ancient and modern.

The buildings are split into five apartments – three in one and two in another – although one apartment in the larger farmhouse is yet to be finished. Each apartment has its own individual character thanks to original features such as three beautiful south-facing arched windows in what was originally a pigsty. In another apartment is a single pivoting 4m-high metal-framed glass door made by a local blacksmith for what was formerly a barn entrance and now leads from a sitting room to a terrace. The result is a graceful modernity that is found through honest design.

The apartments have private terraces and land immediately surrounding the property has been tamed to just the right degree, resulting in pretty gardens and pockets of surprise. A lower terrace provides a private setting for the 15m x5m rock-lined infinity pool which has undisturbed views across the valley and offers the perfect summer spot to look for shooting stars.

LAYOUT

BEDROOMS

There are currently 13 bedrooms spread over the two buildings: nine in the larger farmhouse and three in the other. Each of the bedrooms has unique architectural features and has been individually decorated using a unified colour palette that reflects the surrounding landscape. One of the bedrooms in what was formerly a pigsty is on the ground floor and has been designed with wheelchair access. There is scope to create further double or twin bedrooms by converting rooms that are currently used as an office or wardrobe.

BATHROOMS

The apartments have en-suite bathrooms that are individually decorated and mostly traditional in style but with modern fixtures and fittings, including high-performance showers. Some have a bath and there are guest WCs in the larger apartments.

KITCHEN

In the larger building there are three kitchens, each with a central island, large pantry and big windows. In the second building, one apartment has a large kitchen that is open plan with the sitting and dining area while the other has a corner kitchen that opens onto the dining and living space. There is a pizza oven in the main house.

LIVINGROOM

The living and dining rooms in the various apartments at La Canonica are individually designed but most share beautiful exposed stone walls and large open fireplaces.

OTHER ROOMS

There is a separate laundry room that is accessible to all the apartments as well as an independent store room.

FACILITIES

OUTSIDE

La Canonica sits in approximately 1.5 hectares of private land and is surrounded by mature trees and woodland. The property is accessed via a private drive and there is parking for several cars. The beautifully landscaped garden is a delightful mix of more formally maintained areas, wisteria-covered pergolas, large trees that provide shade and small fields beyond. The infinity pool (15m x 5m x 1.4m) is lined in the same blue and grey stone as the surrounding terrace. Set at the perfect distance below the end façade of the larger building, it is sheltered on one side by the terrace wall while the other side offers stunning views over the fields to the wooded hills beyond. The nearby river provides a pretty soundtrack while also offering spots for wild swimming. Next to the pool is a veranda, a small outdoor kitchen and a changing room with a toilet. Each of the apartments has a private terrace, perfect for al fresco dining.

TECHNICAL

Both buildings are connected to a private well. The water is fine to drink and is used for irrigation as well and there is a large underground holding tank. The water is analysed yearly and there are two softeners.

The heating (both underfloor and radiators) and hot water in the smaller building is fuelled by LPG, while a wood pellet boiler is the heat source for the larger building.
